Multimedia Anti-Oppression Ally Toolkit

Call for Content

The Decolonizing Together Team is pleased to invite contributions to our forthcoming Multimedia Ally Toolkit. Hosted on the Decolonizing Teaching Indigenizing Learning website, this Open Educational Resource toolkit will feature text-based, podcast and video content to bring to light the perspectives and experiences of racialized and marginalized people previously absent in teacher education programming. Through this medium, we aim to address how Indigenous erasure, racism, ableism and multiple other forms of oppression are taken up in the Faculties of Education and how to address existing gaps through changes to practice and policy.

Building on the thought-provoking presentations during our two symposiums in October 2021 and January 2022, we continue to aim at cultivating a diverse community to create and sustain equitable and inclusive campuses and teacher education experiences. Topics addressed in this toolkit may include, anti-racism, anti-oppression, anti-ableism, sexuality and gender discrimination, inclusive learning practice, settler of colour experiences. Our goal is to provide in-service and pre-service teachers with practical and applicable approaches to addressing this content in their teaching, or for facing challenges related to these issues as they arise in day-to-day practice.

Interested contributors are asked to send a brief proposal (maximum 300 words) to the team by March 1, 2023.

Final papers and other content are due July 1, 2023.

Final parameters:

- Papers: 3500-5000 words (not including references)
- Audio: 10-15 minutes of podcast feed or other audio recording
- Video: 10 minutes in length

Time Line:

- Proposals Due: March 1, 2023
- Acceptance Notification: April 1
- Final works submitted: July 1, 2023
- Publication: Sept 1, 2023